At a Zoo. Heni Wemkart, 4 Shady Hill Square, Cambridge, Mass.; 1960. Paperbound. Illustrated. 24 pages. Price, 58 cents; quantity rates.

The first in a series of books for beginning readers, this can be read by a child who knows the sounds oo and a as in cat. Later books will take up other phonics sounds.

Social Studies

The Civil War, Earl Schenck Miers. Wonder Books, Inc., 1107 Broadway, New York 10; 1961. Paperbound. Illustrated. 48 pages. Price, 50 cents.

The "How and Why Wonder Books," which previously concentrated on science subjects, are now expanding into other areas of handsome reference books for children ages seven to 12. Written in an interesting fashion, the story begins with life 100 years ago and ends with the assassination of Lincoln. It provides information to help determine reasons for the war.

Geography of the New World, John R. Borchert and Jane McGuigan. Rand McNally and Co., P.O. Box 7600, Chicago 80; 1961. Clothbound. Illustrated. 448 pages. Price, $4.96.

Part of a new series for grades three to seven, this is one of the fifth-grade geography texts. There are chapters on each of the sections of the United States and one each on Canada and Latin America. Numerous pictures and maps are included in this attractive book. An annotated teachers edition is available, as well as a workbook (80 cents). The series makes the study of geography modern, by developing such topics as problems of urbanization and freedom and heritage of the people.

Science

Science for the Space Age, Victor C. Smith and B. Bernarr Vance. J. B. Lippincott Co., 333 West Lake Street, Chicago 6; 1961. Clothbound. Illustrated. 616 pages. Price, $4.96.

Designed to encourage student participation in classroom activities, the text includes with each daily unit a demonstration situation, with apparatus described and observations and conclusions suggested. This ninth-grade text will challenge the average and above-average pupil.

The Web of Nature, Ted S. Pettit. Garden City Books, Garden City, N.Y.; 1960. Hardbound. Illustrated. 56 pages. Price, $2.95.

Beautiful color paintings illustrate this interesting study of nature. Some of the chapters consider why plants grow where they do, plants and animals, types of terrains etc.
